GWC — The Melting Pot

Gardner-Webb attracts a variety of students from a variety of places. Some are "natives" — the Carolinas, Georgia, Virginia, Tennessee. Many are from more distant regions in the United States, such as Florida, New Jersey, and California. A few are from other places in the world, including Japan, the Bermuda Islands, and Zimbabwee. Within the mix is a cross-section of urban and rural cultures.

As a nation, Americans celebrated the 200th anniversary of the Statue of Liberty this year; as a community, Gardner-Webb celebrated its 75th anniversary this year. This college can be proud that its heritage is as rich in many ways as the nations. The freedom and diversity of this campus is reflective of our national and religious strength.

Boiling Springs 75th

The 75th anniversary of Boiling Springs was a festive occasion for both the townspeople and the students. A parade started off the day. It featured floats, bands, cheerleaders, sports teams, and others.

For the afternoon, the college provided a picnic-style lunch. There were student-sponsored activities for the children, including bobbing for apples and dodgeball. Entertainment was provided by various local country and bluegrass bands.

The main attraction for the day was a banquet honoring Earl Scruggs. Due to an illness, he was unable to attend. However, he was given an honorary Doctorate in Folk Music. It was an exciting day and fun was had by all who participated.

This beautiful float was entered in the parade by Branch Banking and Trust.

Snow at the Webb

Although every winter brings mixtures of freezing rain, sleet, and snow, it is not often that this area of North Carolina gets such a deep snowfall at one time. But on Thursday, January 23, Gardner-Webb students woke to find knee-deep snow blanketing the campus. Most professors did not come to hold class and students spent the day holding snowball fights, building snowmen, and sledding. Some stayed out for hours, until all their clothing was soaked and they were freezing.

Of course, all good things must come to an end. The snow melted slowly, leaving patches of ice here and there, and classes resumed. Students reluctantly went back to classes, still watching the sky for just a few more flakes.

The heavy snow brings down the awnings at local shops.

Some guys get together for a challenging game of football in the snow.

PEOPLE

The scene is set

Always one of the most highly visible social and performance organizations on campus, the "Theatre People" have once again made their presence known at Gardner-Webb.

Brought together by a common love of the theatre, this motley crew of stage struck thespians has carried on the tradition of bringing excellence to Dover Theatre. Each of these unique individuals has spent endless hours building, painting, rehearsing and, finally, performing beneath the lights, and along the way becoming a family. Both on and off stage, the theatre people enjoy a bond of close-knit friendship that is hard to find elsewhere, and their special brand of deviant humor has the entire campus not knowing what to expect next. This year, the theatre people have truly added an extra dimension at the Webb. It's a wonderful job, but someone has to do it!

Working on a play can be exhausting so Debbie Cravey and Chip Caldwell grab a quick nap.

A note above the rest

All around the campus and especially in the area of OMG Memorial, you can hear singing voices, pianos, trumpets, trombones, flutes, clarinets, guitars, xylophones, drums, and other instruments. These sounds come from the musically inclined people on Gardner-Webb's campus.

These people may or may not be music majors. Some simply enjoy music. But all of these people have one thing in common; they have musical talent. Some are singers; some play instruments; some do both.

These people make life more enjoyable for those at the Webb who simply like to listen to music. Throughout the year there is a variety of choral and band performances, recitals, and college sponsered activities, such as talent and variety shows, that show off the talents of those involved. Area music lovers are thankful for those talented people on campus who provide Gardner-Webb with musical entertainment.

Teresa Cannon and Tracy Jessup love doing things together like singing or reading the paper.

The Gardner-Webb band spends a lot of time practicing so they can entertain the crowds at football games.

What is a friend?

College friendships are very special. For most of us entering college is a time of starting over. We have left behind our old friends and are besieged by a sea of new faces. Meeting new people and making new friends help ease the feelings of homesickness and loneliness.

The friendships made in college often last a lifetime, in business relationships, social ties, and even in marriage.

Students treasure their friends and look forward to the time they share together. Going to movies, eating in the cafeteria, and just plain having fun is more enjoyable if you have someone to share it with. The dorms are always filled with laughter, music, and the sounds of people having a good time together. Friendships add color to our lives and give much pleasure to the things that we do.

Lydia Grainger and Kim Wise communicate to each other using sign language.

Even though they have work to do. Susan Ballard and Rodney Miller spend time together.

Carl Stokes and Wendy Guthrie met a special friend at the B.S.U. Fall Convention.

Special people populate the Gardner-Webb College campus. There are few more special than the hearing and visually impaired students. Every day they work hard at activities other students call routine. Their accomplishments are often amazing.

The excellent programs here draw students from all over the world. They are challenged to perform well in their classes even though they have to spend much more time on their studies than other students. Still they try their best to exceed the requirements of their chosen major.

Not only do they succeed in the academics of college life, but also in the other aspects of college life. They become leaders in the school. They help new students get off to a fresh start.

These special people pull together and help each other through the rough times. They understand and truly care about each other. They are an inspiration to all the students at Gardner-Webb. They let others know that if they work hard together, anything is possible.

Abby Babson has to work extra hard because of her school work and her job on campus.

Even though she is loaded down with a heavy bag, Leslie Fairall is still smiling.

It is often said that no two people are alike. A look around Gardner-Webb's campus is proof. Gardner-Webb has many different kinds of people, people from varying countries, states and towns, people with different talents and interests, people with different attitudes and outlooks on life.

They come to study subjects ranging from religion to physical education, from music to science, from English to communications to business to nursing and there is so much more. There are activities to accomodate almost every interest: acting, singing, playing sports, climbing mountains, traveling, politics, worshipping, fellowship, even simply star-gazing. The list is almost endless.

The "Webb" is a place of variety, yet it takes all kinds to make this campus a colorful place to be educated. Although the students may be different in their opinions and viewpoints, there is a sense of caring and trust among us that just cannot be found anywhere else. It is the variety that makes Gardner-Webb colorful, the common fellowship that makes it special.

Why is Monk Ashley about to hit Roy Brinkley?

STUDENT LIFE

GWC Homecoming Activities

Lots of rain and cold weather couldn't stop the fun-filled activities during this year's Homecoming week. The Student Center Board sponsored most of the activities for the Gardner-Webb students, which included a Punk Dance, an ice-cream social, a night of skateing at Kate's, a movie, "The Jewel of the Nile," and finally a concert by Dan Peek.

The excitement which built all week finally came to a head on Saturday. Most students awoke to watch the Gardner-Webb Homecoming Parade, featuring many floats that students from GWC built themselves. After the parade, everyone moved to the stadium to watch the Gardner-Webb Bulldogs defeat the Fighting Christians of Elon College. During half time the crowning of the 1986-87 Homecoming Queen took place. Chrissy Vaughn, Sharon Nichols, Cara Barker, and Lynn Wentz represented their classes as the Queen's Attendants during the ceremony. Teresa Cannon, a senior from Charlotte, North Carolina, received the title of Gardner-Webb Homecoming Queen. She was escorted by Tracy Jessup. The weekend finished up with a video dance, also sponsored by SCB.

To boost the crowd's spirits, two band members play the GWC "Fight Song".

A very happy Teresa Cannon hears her name announced as 1986-87 GWC Homecoming Queen. Tracy Jessup knew she would win.

Masquerade Day

During Homecoming week, the students of Gardner-Webb College participated in a variety of dress up days, sponsered by the Student Center Board. During this week there were days to dress up in your favorite beach, toga, new wave, and GWC Spirit outfits. The most participation came the day before Halloween, when everyone dressed in his favorite trick or treat costume. There was a contest for the best dressed, with prize money awarded for first place. Faculty members and students of the Food Committee also helped out by throwing a small carnival to raise money for the school.

The Crucible

The place is Salem, Massachusetts and the witch trials are beginning. The cause of witchcraft afoot? A group of teenage girls who were dancing in the forest late one night. The connection? Dancing was forbidden by community adults and the church in Colonial days. In order to relieve themselves of punishment, the girls blamed their actions on the Devil and his adversaries. His adversaries, they claimed, were local townspeople. Hysterically, the girls accused these people of witchcraft, a practice punishable by death. Thus, to avoid punishment, these girls wrote the epitaph of hundreds.

The Gardner-Webb drama club performed The Crucible on Thursday, October 9, 1986 through Sunday, October 12, 1986. Dr. Jeff Elwell directed the Arthur Miller play.

Birthday of the Infanta

The Birthday of the Infanta by Ron Nelson is a very challenging, contemporary one-act chamber opera. Because of the contemporary music style, it is difficult and extremely challenging for the all-student cast. The vocal lines are sometimes dissonant and the intervals difficult to negotiate. The reviewer of the opera is quoted as saying, "The students' performances were exceptional. Their singing, acting, and expression made the performance come to life, taking the listener to the realm of imagination and fantasy."

The setting is 17th century Spain in the throne room of the royal castle of the child-queen of Spain. The infanta is being instructed in the proper way a queen should walk. It is her birthday, and she would prefer to be outside with the other children. Her mood changes when she learns that her guardians, Don Pedro and Mara, have captured a dwarf from the forest to dance for her. The moral of the story concerns the fact that we should not judge people by outward appearances only and we should be sensitive to other people's feelings.

The opera was staged, choreographed by Dr. Fern. The reviewer's quote, "It is not often that a modern composition can be performed by undergraduates with the level of professionalism displayed by the GWC Opera Theatre. Congratulations to the cast and to Dr. Fern for a fine performance."

The Lesson, Pieces of Pushkin

The Lesson is a play by Eugene Ionesco. It is "the Theatre of the absurd." It is the twisted story of a student — professor relationship where, when the professor has a hard time teaching the student, he kills her. Further investigation reveals that he has killed 39 student before her.

Roy Brinkley plays the part of Mozart in "Salieri and Mozart."

Henry Styron portrays Salieri in "Salieri and Mozart". He also has a part in "Poltava".

Debbie Cravey and Melissa Whitlow work together in "A Winter Evening". Debbie also understudies the part of the student in The Lesson.

Pieces of Pushkin is actually a sample of poems and plays written by Alexander Pushkin. Five pieces were chosen and organzied by Dr. Jeff Elwell who directs the play. The five pieces chosen are titled "Salieri and Mozart", "Abandoning an Alien Country", "A Winter Evening", "Poltava", and "Secular Power". Pianist Kenneth Huber of Bristol, Virginia, selected and performed the music for Pieces of Pushkin.

Kim Harris narates the poem "Abandoning an Alien Country". She also plays the part of Laura in The Glass Menagerie.

and The Glass Menagerie

Chip Caldwell is a busy actor. He has parts in "Abandoning an Alien Country" and he narrates "Secular Power" and "Poltava." He portrays the professor in The Lesson. Chip also plays the character of Tom in The Glass Menagerie.

Dr. Jeff Elwell has taken on the tedious task of directing all three plays.

The Glass Menagerie by Tennessee Williams is a well-known play about a crippled girl who spends a few precious moments with the man she secretly loved in high school, only to find that he is engaged to another woman. It is about her mother who is always busy trying to make a better life for her daughter and it is about her brother who wants to get away from their apartment and into the real world.

Nancy Reid plays the student in The Lesson.

FACULTY

Executive Officers

Donnie Clary

Dr. John Drayer

Dr M. Chris White is in his first year of leadership at Gardner-Webb and is already making a difference, with energy and insight.

Originally from Hartwell, Georgia, Dr. White received his Ph.D. from Emory. He comes to G.W. from Elon College, having served there as Vice President for Academics. Quickly assessing our needs, Dr. White has been instrumental in mounting a $6,000,000 campaign to improve services and facilities.

Donnie Clary is also in his first year at G.W. and has assumed the duties of Vice President of Business. He has spent several months in budget analysis and expects to make some major revisions in budgeting procedures. Mr. Clary comes from Limestone and was recently married. Already his approachable personality has increased the pleasure of doing business with his office.

Mr. Lutz and Mr. Garrity continue their service in student affairs and development. Mr. Lutz and his staff work hard to insure an orderly campus and to improve entertainment. Mr. Garrity is directing the gifts campaign and overseeing the athletic program.

Dr. Drayer, after serving several years as Academic Dean, has chosen to step down. Dr. Drayer was a professor in the Religion/Philosophy Department before becoming dean and will perhaps continue his contribution to Gardner-Webb there.

Hank Garrity

Melvin Lutz

Crowning queens is just one of the many duties a President must perform.

Dr. Chris White enjoys his position as President and always has a smile on his face.

Broyhill School

The Broyhill School of Management, the successor to the Department of Business Administration, in 1981 became the first endowed school at Gardner-Webb College through the generosity of the Broyhill Foundation of Lenoir, NC.

The Broyhill School of Management provides professional training within a Christian, liberal arts college, building on the skills in learning and critical thinking that liberal arts fosters. The Broyhill School of Management encourages the pursuit of knowledge and the mission of service for those who choose to serve in the world of business.

Bachelor of Science degrees are offered with a major in Accounting, Administrative Management, Business Administration, Industrial Management, and Management Information Systems.

The Broyhill School is sponsor for Phi Beta Lambda, the business club for Gardner-Webb. This year members of Phi Beta Lambda represented the Broyhill School at the Business Symposium sponsored by the Catawba County Chamber of Commerce in Hickory. For the third year in a row Gardner-Webb placed first, this year against eight teams from other senior colleges. In addition Phi Beta Lambda brought home seventeen awards from the Phi Beta Lambda State Convention in Charlotte, NC.

The Broyhill School is constantly changing to serve the needs of the business community, and prepare students for professional careers in business.

Communications

In its third year of operation, Communication Studies achieved departmental status. The number of majors continues to grow rapidly, and the quality is impressive. This year, four of the nine Presidential Scholars are Communication majors. Six students graduate in May.

Two minors have been added to the department, Sign Language Studies and Dramatic Arts. Both are open to other majors who have interests in performance or in serving the hearing impaired.

Communication Studies include courses in journalism, radio/TV, drama, and film, all emphasizing oral, written, and visual communication skills. In addition to classroom hands-on experience, each student serves in two required professional internships. Recent experiences have involved the Shelby Star, community theaters in NC and Virginia, a Raleigh T.V. station, area radio stations, and EO Studios for a HBO production.

Davis School of Nursing

The Davis School of Nursing, located in Elliot Hall, consists of two distinct academic nursing education programs. The first level, the Associate of Arts degree program, prepares graduates eligible to take the licensure examination to become practicing registered nurses. The second level, the Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree program, accepts registered nurses only and prepares them to continue their nursing practice but at a professional level. Many of this years graduating BSN students are graduates of Gardner-Webb's Associate Degree graduating class of 1985. In addition, the school has an off-campus BSN program located in Statesville, North Carolina.

Both programs on the Gardner-Webb campus share a 3-room practice lab facility with various life-like simulated models on which to practice such techniques as birthing and various health screening exams. Students from both programs have access to the department's computer lab facilities which help to enhance their nursing knowledge. Similar facilities are available in the BSN off-campus facility in Statesville.

Education

The old adage, "Those who can, do, and those who can't, teach," is being crushed by the department of education at Gardner-Webb College. The department seeks to put out excellent teachers in all levels from kindergarten teachers to college professors. The future teachers must learn not only what to teach, but how to teach. Many Education majors have an emphasis such as Math or English, but they must learn the basics. Teaching is not always easy; not all people can transfer their knowledge to the minds of others. The Department of Education is geared toward making teachers who not only know the basics, but who can grow and change as education grows and changes. Teaching has become a higher priority in America today, and the department strives to train future teachers in the education process and give them the edge in career climbing.

Literature enables the student to share the best thoughts from the greatest minds, expressed in the best manner yet conceived. A compilation of such literature offers a sea of wisdom which is relevant to the life and well-being of the people in any age.

All members of the English faculty at Gardner-Webb are available to stir the water and aid the student by offering the benefit of their expertise which manifests itself in experience, dedication, and variety.

Each teacher lives to learn and learns to share.

Fine Arts

The music program of Gardner-Webb is accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music, one of two departments of the college holding national accreditation. All degree programs are in compliance with the standards set by this body and concentrations are available in Music Education, Sacred Music and Music with concentrations in Sacred Music/Religion, Sacred Music/Church Recreation, Performance, Composition, and Research (Treatise).

Music talent scholarships are available to qualified students, based on performance ability and academic achievement. They are renewable for four years, as long as academic guidelines are met.

The most significant achievement in 1986 was the acquisition of a Steinway Concert Grand Piano, received as a gift from Mr. Charles I. Dover and the Dover Foundation of Shelby. Dr. Cribb and Dr. Billings were sent to the Steinway factory (by Steinway Company) in New York to select the instrument. The dedication recital was given on September 30 with the outstanding German pianist, Stephan Moeller, appearing. Mr. Moeller is from Hamburg, West Germany, and is on the faculty of the University of Bremen.

Performing groups in the department consist of both vocal and instrumental. The choral groups are the select Concert Choir and the non-audition College Chorale. Instrumental groups include the Band and College/Community Orchestra.

The Opera Workshop presents chamber opera, in English, each year and annually presents a program for area elementary/middle school children in the Dover Theatre. The Concert Choir makes an annual spring tour representing the college in schools, churchs, and organizations.

Two highlights of the year are the annual Choral Clinic in the Fall and an appearance with the Asheville Symphony Chamber Orchestra in the Spring, featuring the Choral Union. This year the Choral Union will present portions of Haydn's Creation with the Asheville Symphony.

Of the eight faculty members in music, six have the earned doctorate in their fields and the two others are in the process of completing the doctorate.

Foreign Language and Literature

The Department of Foreign Languages and Literature offers two majors — French and Spanish — both with or without teacher certification. Greek courses are offered especially for the young people going into full-time Christian vocations.

Students of both French and Spanish are greatly aided in their learning of grammar by the computer-assisted instruction. The computer room is available all of the hours that the library is open.

There is a total immersion program at the University of Quebec in Three Rivers, Canada, which is attended by upper-level French students each summer. In addition, Dr. Andrews and Dr. Morgan accompany a group of students at fall break each year to Montreal and Quebec City, Canada, and at the end of the school year they accompany a group to Paris, France.

Health and Physical Education

Exercise, hard work, and sweat mark an excellent athlete or a physically fit non-athlete. The Department of Health and Physical Education strives to graduate students disciplined in physical education and well informed in their health awareness.

Gardner-Webb has well-equipped facilities in Lutz-Yelton Convocation Center and the field house to turn out well-trained and disciplined athletes. Most facilities allow the student, whether or not he is a physical education major, to set his own pace in athletic training. Some examples are the fitness trail, the tracks in LYCC and around the football field, and the weight training rooms in the field house and in Bost Gymnasium.

Graduates of the Department of Health and physical education are ready to prepare for a teacher's certificate in these areas so that they may teach; or they go on to work in other related fields such as church recreation or sports medicine.

Mathematical Sciences

The department offers a variety of majors including mathematics, teacher certification for grades 6-9 or for secondary schools, computer science, and a dual degree engineering major (with Auburn University).

The Professors in mathematics are well trained for their profession and are concerned about students as individuals, in and out of the classroom.

The Craig Building location offers a pleasant environment for students, most all of whom take at least one course there.

Entering Students with high SAT quantative scores, STEP scores, and/or class rank are invited to begin calculus. Next year, the introduction course for all students will be College Algebra.

Mr. Black takes time out to enjoy the wonderful cuisine in the cafeteria.

Dr. Jolley takes time out of his busy schedule to have his picture snapped.

Natural Sciences

Students who plan to major in biology or chemistry, or who plan professional studies in agriculture, dentistry, medical technology, medicine, pharmacy, physician assistant, and veterinary medicine call Withrow Science Building their second home.

The Department prides itself on the many alumni who now are leaders in education, medicine and allied health, and basic research. Currently, graduates of the Department are enrolled in graduate and professional schools that include Vanderbilt, Tulane, NC State, and Bowman Gray School of Medicine.

During a student's undergraduate years he participates not only in the usual lectures and laboratories but also in numerous field trips and other "outside" learning experiences: The Outdoor Explorers Club takes several major field trips each year (Okefenokee Swamp, coastal North Carolina, North Carolina mountains, Florida, for example), and these expeditions combine learning and camaraderie. Members of this group are also members of the NC Collegiate Academy of Sciences.

In addition to the Outdoor Explorers Club, open to all students — science majors and other majors alike, the Department houses Tau Sigma Chapter of Beta Beta Beta, the national honor society for biology majors. TriBeta encourages scholarship and research, and membership is by invitation.

The Department has close ties with the Highlands Biological Laboratory in Highlands, North Carolina, the major center for studying southern Appalachian flora and fauna. Through this affiliation, students and faculty have the opportunity for short-term field work or long-term research.

Housed in the Department is an excellent — and growing — herbarium collection. Faculty in the Department pride themselves on being able to cover virtually any discipline within the natural sciences, and offer courses as diverse as microbiology and oceanography and astronomy.

Psychology

The Department of Psychology is a relatively small but vibrant academic enterprise on campus. In addition to a large number of traditional academic courses, the Department offer topical seminars (e.g., The Psychology of Women, Crisis Intervention) and internship experiences for its majors. The Department sponsors the Psychology Club which will soon become affiliated with the Psi Chi national organization. Most psychology majors and many minors continue their training in graduate schools.

Dr. Bonnie Wright

Dr. Freida Brown lectures her students about psychological behavior.

Dr. Gaddis is his usual sunny self even in class.

Religious Studies and Philosophy

The Department of Religious Studies and Philosophy seeks to present the Christian heritage to all of the students who earn a degree from Gardner-Webb College. For those students who are entering a church-related vocation and majoring in this department, we endeavor to prepare them to think and to act responsibly with the knowledge gained. We encourage our students to pursue further study after they graduate from Gardner-Webb and to live a life of servant leadership.

Programs for the Hearing and Visually Impaired

This year the programs for the hearing and visually impaired have been combined into one program under the leadership of Sharon Jennings.

Mrs. Jennings is a friendly and energetic person. She is also very professional. It seems that she has carried off the combination of the programs without difficulty.

The program has new offices. They are located in the house in front of the library. This facility has been renovated for them. It houses the interpreters for the hearing impaired and their equipment. It also houses the materials for the blind.

This program is involved in two of the most obvious areas of Gardner-Webb service.

Social Sciences

The Department of Social Sciences trains students in a wide variety of fields: history, political science, sociology, economics, criminal justice, and human services. The department seeks to prepare the student for careers in politics, social work, business, and teaching. The department also works to give students a solid background in the economic situations of other cultures — past and present. The students must also study basic human behavior.

The department believes that Social Sciences are good training classes for those going into the ministry, so that they may learn more about human interaction.

Many students graduating with a Bachelor of Arts in the social sciences go on to law school or other professional schools dealing with social work.

The Department of Social Sciences strives to instill the skills and knowledge into its students that will ready them for a challenging career.

Dr. Barry Hambright heads to his office to face a stack of work.

SPORTS

The Runnin' Bulldog's 1986 football season began disappointingly, turnovers breaking the back of every good drive. First came a 35-13 loss to NCAA/AA Western Kentucky, then a close loss to the Newberry Indians.

At home, however, the 'Dogs were hot. In the third game, Georgia Southwestern fell 49-17, primarily because of a fired-up G-W defense.

Livingstone was the next to be overwhelmed, and then the James Gang took their show on the road again. Lenoir-Rhyne looked easy, so the 'Dogs baited the Bears and left with the victory, the first in SAC-8 competition. Catawba pulled a sneak attack and handed out a sound home thumping, 35-22. Team Spirits were low.

Carson-Newman took advantage of the spirit, rain, and fog to deal out a dampening loss, but it was only a temporary setback. Before the soggy homecoming crowd, G-W punted in the last seconds to hand Elon a stunning defeat, with President White leading the cheers. Some of the Fight went out of the Christians.

In two of the last three games, the 'Dogs demonstrated that the team had come together. The Presbyterians felt they had been predestined to lose 35-13, and Mars Hill disappointed the god of war, 17-24.

Woody Fish and the coaching staff were happy people, not to mention the G-W fans. We had been picked to go 2-9 for the season, but, as Fish put it, "we worked hard, and a very young football team got better as the year went on." Well said, and well done, Doctor Fish!

1986 Coaching Staff: Greg Taylor, Buddy Bridges, Brian Tomlin, David Dowd, Dewey Lusk, Woody Fish, Joe Hunter, Mark Driscoll, Tony Holland, David Franks, Al Manning.

A coach, in the words of head coach Woody Fish, is "someone who pushes someone to achieve something that he is not willing to work hard enough for on his own." The eleven men on the 1986 football coaching staff found this to be true although they had the advantage of a hard-working team.

The coaching staff required as much team work as they expected out of their players. Each coach worked individually on separate aspects of the game. However, these coaches, specializing in offensive lines and defensive backs, came together to prepare a victorious team.

Fish claims the toughest task for the coaches involves preparing the team for a game every weekend. Players are easily distracted by the college academic and social schedule, but a motivated staff serves as a motivation for the team. The staff found they could work well on the field and off the field.

Fish felt that the families of the staff get along well. Five out of nine full time coaches are married. Linebacker Coach David Franks and Offensive Line Coaching assistant Brian Tomblin are the two student assistants. Greg Taylor, an offensive line coach, says after coaching for the third year for the Bulldogs, "I feel real fortunate to work with a group like this. We are able to make it a lot of fun although it is a lot of work."

Coach Dee Hunt and the twelve members of the Volleyball team bumped off a 13-20 regular season record and a 14-24 overall record. The overall season presents a loss, but the experience gained in the game was demonstrated during the tournament schedule.

The season began with 4 losses to Pfeiffer, Wingate, Limestone, and High Point. The team began to pick up with a win over Mt. Olive and continued their wins over Presbyterian College and Belmont Abbey.

Top returning players Lisa Tucker and Lisa Stewart led their team onto another winning streak beginning with Anderson College and followed with Converse College. The Bulldogs last winning streak included strikes against Davidson, Elon, and Wingate, with a final victory over U.N.C. Asheville.

The toughest competition for the team throughout the season proved to be Lenoir-Rhyne College. However, the volleyball team set up 2 consecutive wins over Lenoir-Rhyne during the tournament. The highlight of the tournament as well as the season included 3 consecutive wins over Belmont Abbey, U.N.C. Asheville, and Campbell College. The 5 wins gave the team an outstanding winning tournament record.

Keeping up the spirits of players and fans may look like fun, but it requires training and hard work. The twelve members of the cheerleading squad, and their bulldog mascot, John Kim, found that cheering demanded their time as well.

The squad, under the supervision of Mrs. Kathryn Musselwhite, began their training in mid-summer. After one week of practice on campus, they departed for a week of intensive training at the Memphis State Cheerleading Camp. The camp consisted of five days of basic instruction and learning of new cheers and stunts.

Of course, all of the cheerleaders who attended the camp succeeded in learning cheers. But more importantly, the girls earned recognition as "Most Spirited" and received ribbons in the Spirit Rhythm category. John Kim, the bulldog mascot, also participated in a separate course for mascots at the camp. By the end of the week, Kim earned the titles of "Most Improved Mascot" and "Most Outstanding Mascot" represented by two gold ribbons. Kim's gold ribbons were preceeded by 3 blue ribbons and 2 red ribbons in other categories during the week. Kim said he enjoyed his first year as mascot. "I played football all my life, so it has been different to take on the role of cheering, but I can be myself inside the suit."

Six hours of practice under the direction of Captains Lymon Jones and Celina Faulkner have paid off for the squad. They managed to cheer the teams on and get along as a group. Sophomore Lisa Stevens said, "Everyone is open to criticism, so things go smoothly."

Any sport requires time and dedication, especially a sport which requires its players to compete in the spring and fall. The seven members of Gardner-Webb's golf team find that the long hours of practice and tournament play reduce the size of their team in comparison to other sports.

Golf Coach Dr. Garland Allen led the 3 returning players and the 4 freshmen team members through 3 tournaments and 2 matches in the fall. The two matches resulted in a win over Limestone College and one loss to Davidson College. Gardner-Webb placed 6th out of 10 in their own Riverbend Tournament. The two following tournaments proved successful for the Bulldogs as well. The Abbey Apple Tournament gave them 8th place out of 23 teams and the 'Dogs were up to par once again with a 5th place rank in the Methodist Intercollegiate Tournament held in Fayetville.

Senior Dewayne Branch claimed this to be "the best fall since I've been here; the seniors are going to have to show good leadership to help get the freshmen on track." But with 6 hours of practice a day the 'Dogs are hopeful of getting a top 2 ranking in the district tournament.

The Bulldog basketball team has long been known as one of the most successful teams at Gardner-Webb. The 1986-87 team held no exception to the reputation built for them in the past. By December, after their first nine games, the Bulldogs had maintained victory over their opponents six times for an overall 6-3 record to carry them through the holidays.

The Bulldogs began the season with a slight but exciting one point win over Belmont Abbey. The 'Dogs kept a winning frame of mind for a 60-58 victory over High Point College. Mount Olive held the team down for a loss. They could not be held down by Edward Waters. They achieved a 97-80 win over them. After one more loss to USC-Spartanburg, the men on the team took off with three consecutive wins over USC-Aiken, Mars Hill, and North Georgia.

Although the Bulldogs could not claim a victory over USC-Spartanburg, they took a second place in the tournament. Two returning players, Brad Smith and Stan Easterling, were named to the all-tournament team. Junior starter Brad Smith scored a career high 25 points. Smith and Aaron Patterson, starting point guard, led the backcourt for the 'Dogs. Smith and Patterson also joined their teammates Chad Gough and Darren Sanders in scoring three pointers to lead their team to victory.

Along with the success of the returning players, the coaches attributed the victories to the new players. Assistant Coach John Haskins said, "A lot of the success could be determined from the output of the newcomers." Head Coach Jim Wiles claimed this "the best recruiting class since I've been at Gardner-Webb and maybe the school's best class ever from top to bottom."

Every sport requires patience and diligence. The women's basketball team certainly won in these categories. They demonstrated patience when Linda Simpson, a forward, had to sit out the first seven games of the season after receiving an injury during practice. They also remained diligent in spite of the fact that their returning starter, Mechelle Hamilton, could no longer take on her position as guard. Hamilton broke her foot during early practices.

The fourteen members of the women's team began practicing on the court on October 7. They had been conditioning for play since September 4. Laziness did not play a part in the outcome of the season. The team practiced an average of 2 hours a day on the court and unaccounted hours working on individual skills.

The nine returning players and five freshmen made up the first Gardner-Webb Women's team to have each home game broadcast on radio. Gloria Campbell, a third year player, said "We have more fans at the game now; we have a lot of talent on the court."

Although the "Lady Dogs" had a few close games, they did not manage to win any of the first eight games. However Campbell adds "We have a better attitude than in the past." The ladies made their patience last through the season. Simpson returned to practice early in December and the team returned after each loss to attempt a victory with great diligence.

Seven has long been regarded as the perfect number. The seven new members of the 1986 baseball team may not have been expected to be perfect but the 14 returning players expected them to help make a more perfect team. However, in the words of senior second baseman Mike Cheek, "We should do pretty good because we have returning players." The team keeps faith in the new and returning players.

The practice season began in August. The men on the team trained through running and lifting weights. In September the team began working on the field to prepare for the 40 games ahead of them. February 28th officially opened the season consisting of 20 home games and 20 away games. They play an average of 3 games a week. The team is picked to win 25 games.

The team, in order to win, relies heavily on the pitchers. They are Robbie Sparks, Marshall Willis, Clint Wiles, Keith Bridges and John Johnson. According to first baseman and pitcher Clint Wiles, "It's the pitching that determines the season."

A full season of 25 matches includes the Gardner-Webb Tennis Classic hosted by the team on an annual basis. The Classic invites three or four visiting teams to play against the ten members of the host team.

Bill Naylor, the team's coach, hopes to lead the team to another victory; the past two years the Classic was won by the Gardner-Webb team. Kenny Wilson, a fourth year member of the team, helped lead the six other returning players to the past victories.

Special People

Service is our theme at Gardner-Webb, and it is reflected in every aspect of college life. Obvious examples stand out, and those receive occasional attention, praise from their colleagues, and congratulations from friends. Enduring service — often quiet, behind-the-scenes, and self-effacing — gets swallowed up in the daily swirl that constitutes the chaos of our semesters.

People who serve in quiet, enduring ways actually define the value of this institution. They provide the steady hands and clear eyes that ride out storms. Two we recognize out of many — Elizabeth Jolley and Mildred Poston.

Miss Jolley has served in the cafeteria since 1954, when the cafeteria was in the basement of OMG. Her work begins at 6:00 a.m. and may extend to 9:00 or 10:00 p.m. if there is a banquet to set up.

Her supervision of the dining hall contributes to our lives daily in ways we take for granted. Her concern for efficient — especially pleasant — operation of the line is demonstrable.

Asked why she has served so long, Miss Jolley replies, "I just like to be around these students," whom she feels are much like those who trod the line in OMG.

Symbols of her service lie in the napkins she has folded, tens of thousands of napkins, each one treated with individual care, each important as a small but essential part of the nourishment at hand, each caressed gently and knowingly as the lives she touches without our notice.

Mildred Poston worked briefly at GW after she finished school and returned in 1964 to help in a capital gifts campaign, one of the most successful in our history. Eventually, after working in another gifts campaign, she served in admissions and in public relations.

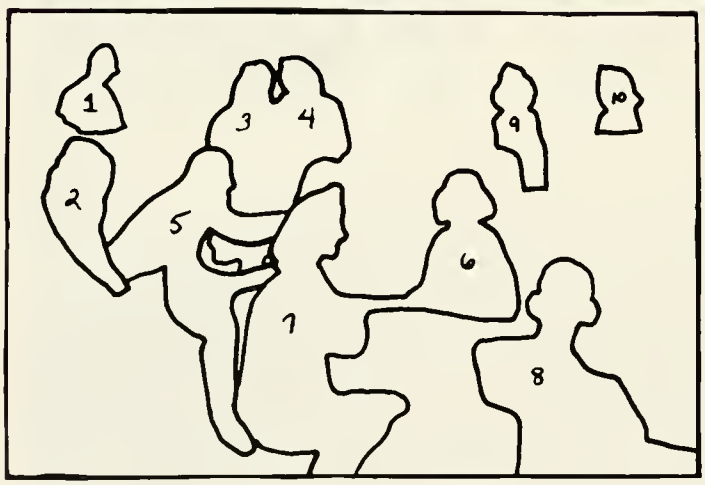
For the last ten years, Mrs. Poston has been the constant presence in an office that has seen three academic deans, Tom McGraw, Bob Knott, and John Drayer. For each of these men she organized and directed the hundreds of tasks that must be attended to each week.

The work is intense and cyclic, often producing mountains of details that must be handled in a matter of days, or hours. However, when a faculty member needs to be reminded of the location of his meeting, Mrs. Poston knows. Appointments are juggled, schedules rearranged, minutes prepared, guidelines re-typed, and reports are distributed. Yet her desk is never cluttered (unless the dean is using it) and her tone is never cold or impatient.

For Mildred, GW is a family experience. Her husband Tom was once Dean of Students, and both her daughters, Lou Ann and Lydia Von, were excellent students here. (Lou Ann is that helpful voice that tells you grades are not yet ready in the registrar's office).

Calm, consoling tones suit well when we are summoned to the dean's office to explain why convocation has seemed so unimportant, or to discuss declining QPR's, or to plead a special circumstance. A pleasant reassuring voice on the other end of a phone call is not all that common even on this campus, but Mrs. Poston's is a constant.

Although her office now sports a new computer, "number-crunching" is not Mildred's style. The soul of her operation is not a filing cabinet, typewriter, calendar, or computer. It is the care she reflects in her eyes and voice and in quiet respect with which she treats each individual — staff, student, administration, faculty, or visitor — whose needs are given her patient attention. Without her help we would all have surely been confused, but it is her spirit that has made the difference.



Celebration!

As it is every year, putting together a yearbook is a long, hard, and tedious job. Pictures must be taken, layouts must be drawn, copy must be written, and the book must be organized. This year's staff has put in long hours — sometimes working into the wee hours of the morning — to meet deadlines and put out a yearbook that GWC students will enjoy for years to come.

This year, after the final deadline was met, the Web staff decided to go to the Snack Shop for some food (NOT cafeteria style) and a little R & R. Dr. Stowe (1) served up some sodas to the staff while co-editor Kim Harris (2) stuffed her face (as usual). Renee Reed (3) and Jamie Touchton (4) shared secrets over a shared soda while Henry Doo (5) tried to get the attention of a non-staffer who joined the group for awhile. Co-editor Melissa Whitlow (6) sincerely thanked Janet Curry (7) for all her photography help. Meanwhile, as Mark Jordan (8) and Lisa Stephens (9) sat back and watched all the activity, Sue Wilhelm (10) put some tunes on the jukebox to add to the party.
